. . . Outside the window is gray rain. The wind howls in the branches. Somewhere in the street, a tram is ringing. And here, in our house, it is quiet and dark. Only sometimes there is a rustle outside the window. It's rain knocking on the window. I look at the photo and it seems to me that I am sitting on a chair, and my mother is sitting next to me. Her father is standing next to her. They look at me and smile. I am very small in the photo. I am not yet four years old. At that age, I couldn't even walk. My mother died when I was still a baby.
