Lexus Es300. I have a second-hand exhaust that is made to fit this vehicle, but it has a problem. The stock gasket has some tears in it, and I've heard it leaks. When I removed the exhaust, I noticed that there was a visible leak near the bottom of the elbow. I was able to look the leak up on the Internet, and it seems to be a common problem on that particular part, and my findings matched what I found. So, I'd like to find an exhaust (truck or standard) made to fit this vehicle that doesn't have that leak. But, if I need to purchase a new exhaust, I'd like to find the cheapest one possible, since I only need a single one (I need it for my car only), and I'm not sure if the warranty would cover it. So, what would you recommend? I like the sound from the second-hand exhaust, but I don't want to void the warranty. Any ideas? What model is your ES300? Might want to contact Toyota and see if they can tell you what model it is offhand. I think there are about 3 models with this exhaust, but I'm not sure which ones they are.
Hey guys, the tailpipe sprocket broke off and I can't get it off the block. So I went ahead and started a rebuild of it. I used a bad copy of the original and did away with a lot of the measurements. I just googled it and found a manual that has a "new" tailpipe sprocket as illustrated in the manual. I thought I could just take a closer look at the factory one and see if I can approximate it for
